Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Poetical Works By Marcus Clarke, Author of For the Term of His Natural Life. This was originally published in an early edition of the poems, and is reprinted by kind permission of Mrs. Marcus Clarke.) The poems of Gordon have an interest beyond the mere personal one which his friends attach to his name. Written, as they were, at odd times and leisure moments of a stirring and adventurous life, it is not to be wondered at if they are unequal or unfinished. The astonishment of those who knew the man, and can gauge the capacity of this city to foster poetic instinct, is, that such work was ever produced here at all. Intensely nervous, and feeling much of that shame at the exercise of the higher intelligence which besets those who are known to be renowned in field sports, Gordon produced his poems shyly, scribbled them on scraps of paper, and sent them anonymously to magazines. It was not until he discovered one morning that everybody knew a couplet or two of How we Beat the Favourite that he consented to forgo his anonymity and appear in the unsuspected character of a verse maker. The success of his republished collected poems gave him courage, and the unreserved praise which greeted Bush Ballads should have urged him to forget or to cone pier those evil promptings which, unhappily, brought about his untimely death. Adam Lindsay Gordon was the son of an officer in the English army, and was educated at Woolwich, in order that he might follow the profession of his family.
