Excerpt: .species: manzanita, buckthorn, oak, bear clover, wild lilac, azalea, alders, poplar, willow, ceanothus, wild rose, and chinquapin. Except in a few sections where the forest cover is exceptionally thick, reproduction is not greatly retarded. Abundant reproduction was noted in the old cut-over land. Ground Cover. The ground cover is good in the virgin timber, where it is composed chiefly of a good layer of needles, ferns, grasses, and thimbleberries. The humus is especially thick in the small flats along Big Creek. On the cut-over land the ground cover is poor, rendered so by logging operations and fires. Logging. Sugar pine and white fir form most of the cut made by this company. Owing to the steep character of the country, all the logging is done with donkey engines. Most of the logs are hauled to the landing by means of dry chutes, but a...
